WEEKLY NEWS LETTER
 BY
 W. F. BOND, COMMISSIONER
 State Dept. Public Welfare

The legislature at its recent session increased the appropriation for the Welfare Department for the biennium beginning July 1 of this year $5,000,000 for all purposes. Of course, most of this increase will go to the needy aged, which will mean that in July, 84 per cent of the old people on the old age payroll will receive an increase in their monthly checks ranging from $1 to $2 each. The other 16 per cent will not receive any increase because either their grants are so low the percentage of increase will not make any difference, or because they are already receiving the maximum allowed under the Mississippi law of $30 a month. Just before Congress adjourned the other day it voted an increase to the states for the welfare program, but at the present time we do not know the conditions under which this extra money may be made available.

the few powers allotted to the mayor and the restrictions placed upon those which are granted to him. This has resulted in a diffusion both of authority and responsibility. The main features of the weak-mayor form include the following:
 "1. A mayor, properly elected, but entrusted with limited authority.
 "2. Administrative departments headed by officers or boards elected by the people independently of the mayor.
 "3. A council or board of aldermen elected by wards and representing them as geographical areas rather than the municipality as a whole."
 Under this form of government the mayor stands on a level with other members of the council. He possesses no power of veto and all powers delegated to him must be ratified by the council.
 The Bureau of Public Administration points out the weakness or defects in this system of government:
 "1. The long ballot, that is, many elective officials, which ultimately weakens popular control over municipal administration;
 "2. Division of power and authority resulting in both a diffusion of responsibility and a lack of common direction.
 "3. Creation in larger municipalities of a complex and rigid administrative organization."

LAWRENCE M. ODE
 APPOINTED MUSICIAN
 AT KEBLE COLLEGE
 Lawrence M. Ode of New Orleans, a recent student, composer, pianist, and conductor of new and the musical director of the New Orleans Opera House, has been appointed Musician at Keble College, New Orleans, Louisiana, according to an announcement released today by the Executive Director E. MacLaurie, Administrator of the Board of Trustees.
 Mr. Ode's first class is scheduled for the second session of the Summer Term which begins next Monday, July 14 and ends August 21. The course will be "Music Appreciation" and will be offered on Monday and Wednesday evenings from 7 to 10:30 P. M.
 Mr. Ode, who has resided in New Orleans since childhood, studied music under Arthur Wagner and Gino Rosenthal. Later he studied conducting under Louis Hasselmann, Metropolitan Opera Conductor, and the late Dr. H. W. Stophel of Louisiana State University. He is a graduate of the Louisiana State University School of Music and has also studied at Manhattanville College in New York City.
 Mr. Ode is the composer of an original oratorio "Bernadette" which started in 1949 by the New Orleans Opera Guild, a lyric ballet "Three Streets and a River" which was presented in April, 1950, the ballet "Marsyas" which had its premier in June, 1946 sponsored by the New Orleans Opera Guild, and other musical compositions.
 Mr. Ode organized the Civic Music Youth Movement in New Orleans, was Associate Conductor and Choral Director of the Memphis Open Air Theatre, and formerly was a professor at the Brooklyn School of Music, New York, and head of the Music Department at the College of the Sacred Heart, Grand Coteau, La.
 While in the Army, Mr. Ode was musical advisor of the Eighth Service Command in the Pacific. A total of 87 concerts were conducted for the men overseas and while in Japan Mr. Ode conducted the Imperial Tokyo Symphony.

FISH COMMISSION OFFERS REWARD
 JACKSON—The State Game and Fish Commission has authorized payment of $50 rewards for information leading to the arrest and conviction of fishermen who use telephones, electrical shock devices or poisons to take fish.

State Director of Conservation Eugene Fly said the commission authorized the rewards in an "all-out war" against violators of game and fish laws.

"The people who resort to unlawful means of taking fish are pretty well known in their counties," said Fly, "and it is believed this new enforcement move will have a deterring effect on would-be violators, and the prospect of reward will result in the game wardens receiving information they would not otherwise. All information will be held strictly confidential."
 The penalty for either of the violations referred to is a fine for the first offense of not less than $100 and not more than $500, or jail sentence of not less than 60 days and not more than six months, or both.
 Fly said the action of the game and fish commission is in line with action taken recently by the Tennessee game and fish commission.

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS
 — BY —
JAMES L. BISHOP
 Improper land-use causes the loss of top soil worth millions of dollars every year. Five thousand 100-acre farms are washed away every year in the United States due to failure to recognize the need for soil conservation. As the top soil washes down the steep slopes to the ocean, the soil is deposited in the creeks and rivers and the fertile bottom land.
 After sand is deposited on bottom land it becomes worthless to everyone. When the water rushes down the slopes at a terrific speed it cannot soak into the earth, to preserve precious moisture for the survival of crops, pasture and trees. The run-off water can be controlled by terraces, contouring and soil crops on the steep slopes. Then a major portion of the soil is retained so that it can be used for the crops, pasture and trees in the bottom land.
 Here are some of the things you can do to help the Soil Conservation Movement:
 1. You can learn more about Soil Conservation.
 2. You can explain the importance of Soil Conservation to friends and in groups to which you belong.
 3. You can learn what is being done and what needs to be done about soil conservation in your community.
 4. If you own land, you can see that it is used wisely and safely.
 5. You can urge that Soil Conservation be taught in your school.
 6. You can join a Soil Conservation Organization—there is one in your County—or you can help organize one in your community.
 7. You can support Soil Conservation whenever it is a public issue.
 You can get in contact with your local Soil Conservation District (SCD) plan based on inventory of the land and

Senator took to Washington to solve a classical problem. A disappointed jurist, a friend of the law, an advocate of the cause of industry, the Senator would have been the least natural that the first address and the first address delivered by Sen. Stennis agreed to a date of the Senate certification. He won his Senate seat with the speech. The Tennessee civil rights program was spontaneous and setting issue at that time. The South's Senators were united into a small and effective alliance under the leadership of Georgia's Senator Richard B. Russell. Stennis took the measure of the issue and won his first fight when he forced the Senate's Rules Committee to hold a series of hearings on the anti-poll tax bill. When the issue reached the floor, Senator Russell named Stennis to open the debate. It was unusual tribute to a new senator and reflected the confidence of his colleagues. The battle was won with Stennis setting the pace in a strong constitutional argument and a branding of the entire program as "civil wrong legislation." It was a turning point in the history of the bills. The opposition has never been able to regain the initiative, with the most recent setback being the defeat of the Hawaiian and Alaskan Statehood bills. It was no surprise to the folks of this old judicial district that during these early months in the Senate, the name of Judge Stennis as presiding officer was heard more and more often. Vice President Barkley and the President Pro-Tem of the Senate, Senator McKellar of Tennessee, turned time and again to the Mississippi to preside over the Senate. Today he is ranked by many of his colleagues as

A young man in his country, Stennis' family traces its roots to the nation's early immigrants as their great-grandfather, John Stennis, came to America in 1826.

Stennis was born in the Senate District of Mississippi and grew up in Senatobia, Miss., where he attended army academy until about two years after the turn of the century.

Stennis, also as a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, the Senate Preparedness Committee, the Senate Public Works Committee, and the Senate Civil Functions Subcommittee of the Appropriations Subcommittee of the Armed Services Committee, has helped shape the Nation's vast defense program to meet the threat of Communism.

The Senate Preparedness Committee acts as a watchdog over the military, effecting economies through constant seeking out of wasteful practices.

The Public Works Committee handles flood and highway legislation and Stennis has a vote on the Appropriations Committee on all flood control and rivers and harbors projects because of his membership on the Civil Functions Sub-Committee.

The Senator's promotion to the important positions through earlier service in the Post Office and Civil Service in the Senate District, Rules Committees.

It is not unusual for many Senators to spend years without successfully fathering legislation. Not so with Stennis. Two vital reforms of the session bear his name: one, a purchasing catalog for the Military and intended to eliminate duplication and reduce costs. The Hoover Com-

Stennis is viewed as one of the Senate's most effective workers in behalf of agriculture and education. In two last-day-of-the-session rough and tumble fights, Stennis has helped rescue funds to continue the vocational education program in Mississippi and the Nation for rural boys and girls. He has been a strong advocate of fair crop price legislation and of other legislation to keep and improve the programs for agriculture.

Today, at 51, Stennis looks forward to new years of effective service in the Senate.

LARGE ATTENDANCE OF SUPERINTENDENTS
AT STATE MEETING

Jackson, Miss., July 17 (Special): The County Superintendents of Mississippi met in Jackson July 10 and 11, in regular annual meeting on call of State Superintendent J. M. Tubb. The meeting was well attended and proved of tremendous benefit to this group of county officials.

Appearing on the program to discuss the Public Employees' Retirement System were W. R. Hough, Executive Secretary, and G. W. Thompson, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the System. This discussion was most helpful in clarifying many points in this new law and system.

Senator George Owen, Pontotoc, Vice-Chairman of the School Study Committee, gave an interesting and informative discussion on the plans and procedures of his Committee. He answered many questions regarding the Committee's work that were very helpful and extended an invitation to the county superintendents to meet with his committee Tuesday, July 15, at the Committee Office in the New Capitol, Jackson.

Members of the Staff of the State Department appearing on the program to discuss the phase of public education coming under their administration or supervision were G. J. Cain, T. H. Naylor, A. P. Smith, S. A. Brasfield, W. R. Burris and J. T. Coleman.

J. M. Thatch, President of the Association of County Superintendents of Education asked that a representative of their Association accept Senator Owen's invitation and meet with the School Study Committee on July 15. The Legislative Committee of the County Superintendents' Association will discharge this assignment.

State Superintendent Tubb expressed satisfaction over the splendid attendance, the great interest manifested in the many answers obtained to perplexing questions. He also was delighted with the many other routine matters of business transacted by the county superintendents with Department offices during the meeting days.

No Future Warning
On Gambling Raids

GULFPORT—A Mississippi National Guard spokesman said Gulf Coast officials will have no advance warning of future slot machine raids.

Major Gen. W. P. Wilson, State Adjutant General, was ordered to the coast Saturday by Gov. Hugh White to check for slot machines. The spokesman said none were found.

Gov. White made public the order to check when he sent Wilson to the coast.

White said the raids were to fulfill a promise made to a US Senate committee that no gambling would be permitted on the coast near Keeler Air Force Base at Biloxi.

The sheriff of the three coastal counties—Leo Byrd of Jackson, Edward McDowell of Harrison and John Egloff of Hancock—said there were no machines in their areas.

Atty. Eaton's subject will be announced later.

There also will be a short panel discussion relative to the first state convention of the LWV held in Natchez last May.

Members of the local League as well as interested spectators and prospective members are invited to attend.

KINDERGARTEN IS ENLARGED, AT THE PARISH SCHOOL

Christ Church Parish School, 912 South Beach, announces the opening of an enlarged kindergarten department for the fall term. The new building is convenient to, but not incorporated with the elementary school.

The classrooms are large, well ventilated and attractively decorated. Modern equipment and sight-saving lights provide an ideal setting for the learning and play experiences so necessary to this age group. The quiet, secluded location, away from traffic, assures the parent of the child's safety during school hours. The extensive play area allows freedom seldom found in this type school.

Two teachers, both trained and experienced in kindergarten education will afford the best in guidance and supervision.

Consideration has been given to guarantee ideal facilities to achieve the purpose of the department to prepare the child for the transition from home life to that of school.

For further information, call Mrs. W. E. Bartram, 514-R, or the Rev. Charles R. Johnson, 754.

better as the gullible gob of the team, while its Marie Wilson who steals the show as the shapely drive-in carhop who, seemingly, is completely unconscious of her many charms. She's a wonderful blend, as always, of wistful naivete and outrageous misinformation.

The story, despite its salty title, centers mostly around the racetrack and the efforts of Seaman Marx to help his long-time ship and brig-mate, Bendie, sell a weak-angled nag which the latter has purchased while on leave.

With the help of Miss Wilson, who owns the nag's twin brother, a real race-horse, the sailors hope to dupe Don DeFore into buying the nag, thinking it's the other horse. To everyone's surprise, both horses turn out to be record breakers, and in the general confusion of crooked-jockies, trainers and gangsters, Miss Wilson finds DeFore quite romantic and the two gobs inadvertently beg a couple of saboteurs.

Gene Lockhart contributes a nice bit as a slippery trainer while Hanley Stafford, radio father of the late Baby Snooks, is properly hysterical as the Navy lieutenant who thinks he sees horses aboard ship and almost loses his mind.

"Red Ball Express" Playing At Star Sunday and Monday

"Red Ball" in railroad jargon, means top priority freight. As an action-packed picture of the semi-documentary class, "Red Ball Express" is definitely top priority for breathtaking entertainment.

The story opens when a young first lieutenant is assigned to organize a group of former truck drivers and "red ball" a fleet of trucks into German occupied territory where General Patton's tanks are bogged down because of a lack of fuel.

As his sergeant, the lieutenant is assigned a bitter young man who has fought with the lieutenant all through their previous lives as stateside truck jockies. The feud continues in the service and ends only when the officer saves the life of the sergeant as they break their way through a burning French village to complete their dangerous assignment.

Jeff Chandler and Alex Nicol are excellently cast as the lieutenant and sergeant, respectively, and Charles Drake and Jacqueline Duval, a charming young French actress who makes her American film debut in the picture, supply tender romantic interest in their roles of a young GI and a French peasant girl.

"Red Ball Express" was directed by Budd Boetticher and produced by Aaron Rosenberg.

Anything can be funny when it happens to someone else.
